Most of the passengers were fast asleep in the eight o'clock train. It was already half past nine. I was smoking while my wife was reading a letter. My little daughter was eating her ice-cream. Suddenly we were all shocked to hear very loud cry from a young lady. She screamed "Help ! He's going to kill me". Many people ran towards her. We asked her where the murderer was. She looked around her for a few moments, then at us, and finally said in a whisper. "What a terrible dream! He killed my mother and sister. That thief! He had a gun, and a big knife!" We comforted her saying that she felt better, we returned each to his seat. I observed an old man sitting beside her. He kept talking with her all through the last fifty five minutes of the journey. I wondered what they were discussing.

When we got off at the station I approached the man and said to him "It was kind of you to keep talking with her..... to help her to be quiet" He said "Oh, no! I only wanted to prevent her from sleeping again and having another dream!"

Should we work all the time without having rest or entertainment? The answer is that we can't go on working without stopping, from time to time and at regular intervals, to have some rest and some recreation. If we did we could make mistakes and the quality of our work might get worse. An overworked person may end up by losing the ability to think clearly and by having no energy to go on working. Sleep is one of the ways in which nature renews our energy. Sports and games are also essential for brain workers who stay in closed offices and do not have a good chance to exercise their muscles. Such activities as swimming and walking may do them a lot of good. So, we should not waste our week ends. They should be made full use of and spent in the open. Having forgotten all about our work and the worries of life, we can then enjoy ourselves to the full and return the next day to work with our energy fully renewed. Change has a magic effect on man's health and consequently on his performance.

A- Answer the following questions:

- 1- Why should people stop work every now and then?
- 2- What happens if one goes on working after one gets tired?
- 3- How can people make good use of their week ends?

Most countries in the world now welcome tourists because of the money they bring in. Many countries make great efforts to encourage tourism, and many also depend on what they earn from it to keep their economies going.

People who like adventures will even try to visit countries. Companies regularly arrange trips through the Sahara desert, or to the Himalayan mountains for whoever enjoys such trips, but the numbers of visitors are few. Most tourists try to choose whichever places have fairly comfortable, cheap hotels, quite good food, reasonable safety, sunny weather and plenty of amusements or unusual things to see. Their choice of a place for a holiday also depends on when they can get away, it is not very pleasant to go to a place when it is having its worst weather.

One big problem for a nation wishing to attract tourists is the cost of building hotels for them. Building big hotels swallows up a lot of money, and many of the countries that need tourists are poor. What they spend on building has to be borrowed from foreign banks. Another problem is that more and more big international companies are building hotels all over the world, so that the profits from these hotels often do not stay in the country in which they have been built.

And there is also the question of training the hotels' staff, teaching them foreign languages, how to cook the kind of food that foreign tourists expect. In Egypt, special colleges and courses have been set up for this.

Tourists often feel shocked by the different customs and habits that they see around them. They refuse the local food and insist on having only what they eat at home.

People on the ground see objects above them sending out lights. Plane passengers see strange things travelling across the sky. Even astronauts have reported them. In 1965, an American astronaut saw one coming towards his spaceship. In 1978, a pilot was flying a plane over New Iceland. Suddenly, he saw something flying close to his plane. It was like a saucer. The passengers on the plane saw the objects, too. A camera man filmed it. It was what we call a UFO, or Unidentified Flying Object. It is often called a flying saucer'.

We have to guess what UFOs are. They might be clouds. Clouds sometimes have the shape of saucers. They might be patches of sunlight. But the New Zealand UFOs appeared on the plane's radar screen in the shape of dots and lines. Clouds and sunlight do not do that. Scientists have given many other answers. Have you ever suspected your friend of having two personalities -- one that is caring and considerate and one that seems impossible to get along with? I'm sure you've not only noticed, but you've probably been horrified by the impossible one. I call these two personalities the Giver and the Taker.

The Giver is the part of you that follows the rule: do whatever you can to make the other person happy and avoid anything that makes him unhappy, even if it makes you unhappy. It's the part of you that wants to make a difference in the lives of others.

But the Giver is only half of the story. In life, our Givers and Takers usually solve problems together. They recognize our need to give and take.

When the Giver is in charge, we are loving and considerate. But when the Taker is in charge, we are rude, demanding and inconsiderate.

Mahatma Gandhi has repeatedly called himself a truth seeker and has learned, in the course of his search, that truth is a condition of being, not a quality outside of oneself or a moral acquisition. Though he saw deceit and falsehood all around him and knew that it was accepted as the standard of life by people occupying positions of authority and influence, he was never tempted to yield to it.

For healing he always had a great love and some aptitude and when at the age of seventeen his family suggested his going to England to study law, he begged to be allowed to study medicine instead. But, the love of healing remained, and though he could not study medicine, he gratified his desire by studying various forms of nature-cure treatment and by experimenting with these on his person, his friends and relatives. More and more people are discovering that sharing and talking about their favorite books with others can be as rewarding as the act of reading itself. For people who feel that they are too busy to sit down with a book, a book club helps them schedule time to read. Others have gained self-confidence by practicing in or leading a discussion. And they enjoy the chance to make new friends.

A successful book club should have a group that is small enough so even the quiet people can be heard but also big enough for many different opinions. The best arrangement is a mixture of ages, sexes and backgrounds for more reading discussion.

To make the meeting so smooth, a leader should be appointed. The leader will usually start the discussion by asking what the author's main idea was. Mahatma Gandhi has repeatedly called himself a truth seeker and has learned that truth is a condition of being, not a quality outside of oneself or a moral acquisition, which is of the very essence of the divine in man. Though he saw deceit and falsehood all around him and it was accepted as the standard of life, he was never afterwards tempted to yield to it.

For healing he always had a great love and some aptitude and when at the age of seventeen his family suggested his going to England to study law, he begged to be allowed to study medicine instead. This, however, was not permitted and law was chosen for him. But, the love of healing remained. Some of these experiments produced remarkable results possibly not only due to the treatment but also to his devoted and instinctive nursing.
